

HOLMAN FAMILY!

A Stanford Business Study once interviewed the CEO's of businesses and compared them with the highest performing CEO's of Fortune 500 companies. One of the conclusions in their quest to understand what made the difference in the performance of the groups was this. The high octane CEO's with the best results all had written goals.

I am a big believer of goals. I am also a strong advocate for huge goals. I think we should have a dream which cannot be accomplished by us. A dream, a vision, which requires the work of God and other people. If my goals are merely those which I can accomplish alone, then my life and ministry will be less than mediocre.

I was invited to be a part of a huge dream and joyfully joined it. Impact Missions Worldwide has a vision of starting 2,000 self-sustaining church plants before 2030. That is 2,000 new churches in six years.

One of their focused location is Northern Ghana, where we are. Here, the dream is 200 churches by 2030. I have been asked to develop, along with others, mentoring, training and systems to make it happen. It is a big, unreachable, unattainable, crazy goal. Just the kind God likes to do.

You can join in financially and prayerfully. Together we can do it!

So Many Needs

We are back in Ghana and going full throttle. I mentioned above the 200 Vision 2030. I am working with a team to start 200 churches in the next six years.

Next week I am teaching at the Bible Church Seminary on the Lordship of Jesus. I also have invitations to teach at the Baptist and Assembly of God seminaries, which I will do a lot of.

Today I was asked to start the Bi-weekly radio broadcast again. We will put some programs together and work on it.

Also, I met today, just showing how up to date these newsletters are, with a group of pastors wishing me to mentor and train them and help plant churches.

Denise is working with the medical evangelistic ministry, Teach to Transform. She will also be teaching and leading women's Bible studies.

We will build 10 churches and drill 10 wells, starting this month. Add a few gazillion evangelistic events and we scratch the surface.

Please, pray and support us!
