By Grace

Church worship here incorporates something different than the normal church in the States. I love it. Each Sunday, after we worship and before the message, there is a time of testimony and prayer. It is open microphone. People come to the front and give God praise and thanksgiving for His grace in their lives the past week.

“Last week I was on my motorcycle and a car ran me over. By God’s grace I am here to tell you about it. I had a mild concussion but did not even break a bone. By grace I am alive.”

“My daughter got malaria and we did not have money for medicine. She was very sick. Then, by God’s grace, someone brought medicine to her. By grace I still have a daughter.”

“By grace we are able to pay for my father’s funeral. He passed two weeks ago and we did not have money to hold a service. By God’s grace this church took up an offering and it was the exact amount we needed. By grace we weep.”

These are all testimonies during our church service in the past few weeks. Every single Sunday people declare the grace of God. It is such a part of their faith that if you ask a person the common courtesy, “Hello. How are you today?”, they will answer, “By His Grace I am doing well.”

By grace. That describes the truth of life. By grace. We are in Ghana by grace. You support us by grace. We preach grace. By grace. What a wonderful point of view and daily reminder.

So, remember. We live By Grace.
